How risky is it?[§]

Each PEPP investment option has some level of short-term and long-term risk associated with it.

In the short-term, some investments may increase or decrease in value quickly and dramatically. This fluctuation in value is referred to as volatility.

In the long-term, some investments might not produce investment returns sufficient for your retirement income. Generally, investments with lower short-term volatility also have lower long-term returns. On the other hand, investments with higher short-term volatility are expected to produce higher long-term returns.

This fund's investment portfolio has a fund level duration exposure of 0.3 years.

As an investor, you should balance these risks based on your own investment goals and investment risk tolerance.

[^] ER represents the total expenses to operate the fund as at March 31, 2019.

^{} Past fund performance is not necessarily indicative of future fund performance. Investment returns vary over time and as such, no guarantees are applicable to the rates of return.

Who is this fund for?

This fund may be an appropriate investment option for Plan members who want a very high capital preservation or for Plan members who have a very short time horizon for their retirement savings plan. This fund is not appropriate for a long-term investor building retirement savings. Investors choosing this fund will need to be comfortable with low expected returns and volatility that result from investing only in money market instruments. The goal of this investment option is to preserve capital, so investors must accept low returns.
